Overview

In the 1890s, Berlin entered the ranks of world cities. Capital of a unified Germany since 1871, the city became the centre of the electro-technical revolution, which created modern forms of production and transportation as well as work and leisure. Home to two of the world’s leading electrical companies (AEG and Siemens) until the end the Second World War, its special relationship to electricity, captured through its characterization as Elektropolis, made it into a symbol for German industrial prowess and cosmopolitan life styles. During the Cold War, Berlin’s insular and divided status took a toll on these, as access to energy became more difficult and transport networks were truncated. The energy crises of the 1970s as well as environmental and anti-nuclear activism facilitated the emergence of alternative life styles that aimed at more sustainable modes of living in the city. While not entirely successful, they paved the way for broader discussions in society on Germany’s energy future and the political project of energy transition towards an increasingly decarbonized energy system (Energiewende). This course will investigate how energy impacted urban spaces and communities in the past and over time. It focuses on Berlin as a case study in order to understand much larger developments in energy history including but not limited to the history of energy transitions.

Goals

This course aims to provide students with a thorough knowledge and critical understanding of the historical role of energy in an urban setting. Using a variety of academic literature, empirical examples, and encouraging deep engagement with the topic on-site, the course provides students with a thorough understanding of the major themes in energy history with a special focus on social and political history. It will encourage students to acquire research skills and to critically engage with historical events and their meanings as well as shape students’ awareness of the complexities of historical inquiry.
Assignment Descriptions

Due before departure to Berlin

Response Paper:
Students will have to write an in-class response paper to one of the four introductory readings (Hughes; Kander, Malanima & Warde; Moss, Smil). This will be worth 10% of your final grade.

Historical IDs:
Students will have to submit two energy-related historical IDs (250 words each) out of a list of 20. Each one will be worth 5% for a total of 10% of your final grade.

Mini Essay and Presentation:
Students will have to write one 500-word mini essay on an assigned energy-related topic and deliver a 5-minute presentation on their chosen topic at our pre-session in Calgary. Together the mini essay and the presentation will be worth 15% of your final grade.

Due in Berlin

Daily Tweets:
Students will have to submit one tweet per day (except free days and final assessment days, total of 15 days) that reflects on the day’s experience. Students are encouraged to include images. This will be worth 5% of your final grade.

Photo Essay
A central assignment for this course will be a collaboratively produced photo essay, which will combine components from each of the three courses for the “Berlin Energies” study-abroad program. Students will be divided into working groups, and each group will produce a photo essay consisting of 27 images. Although the final product will combine material from all three courses (9 images from each course) the components will be graded separately. (Please refer to the description of the components of the assignment below as well as the table summary at the end.) When we return from Berlin, we will present these photo essays as an exhibition at the university’s Germany Day, held on campus each fall.

Component 1: Initial Photo Assembly
Each student will pick three themes from the syllabus for each of the three courses in “Berlin Energies.” For each theme, you will then find one archival image or video. We will give you instructions for finding these images, but please be aware that you must be very careful about provenance (the source of the image) and documentation. In other words, you must use only reputable sources that the instructors accept, and you must be able to document the precise historical context for the image.
Once you have found your images, you will write a caption for each (appropriate for a PowerPoint slide) and a 150-200-word description (similar to what you might find in a museum wall plate), describing its provenance, context, and relevance for the course. You must provide a bibliography of your sources for this information, and you must rely on scholarly sources. This small assignment will be worth 6% of your grade for each course.
Component 2: Primary Source Interpretation

Please note that this component refers only to the “Topics in History” course. Refer to the other two syllabi for instructions on Component 2 for that course. For this course, students will find one historical text/primary source that relates to one or more of the images and write a 2-page source interpretation. This component will be worth 10% of your final grade for “Topics in History.”

Component 3: Group Photo Assembly

This will be a group project. Once we arrive in Berlin, each group will compare the themes they had chosen in Component 1 and come to a consensus about an overarching theme for their photo essay that will combine images relevant to each of the three courses. Over the course of the trip, you will then pick the best pictures (and possibly videos) that you have yourselves taken to produce a photo essay of 27 images – 9 images per course. This three-part organization does not necessarily need to be marked in the presentation itself, but you will have to provide the instructors with this breakdown, because we have to grade each portion of the photo essay separately. (We recognize that this complicates things, but we are trying to balance coherence between the three courses with the faculty requirement that the grading remains separate.) We will grade the overall composition of the photo essay and its captions as a group project, which will be worth 10% of the final grade for each course.

Component 4: Image Descriptions

As documentation for your photo essay, we will also require a wall-plate-like description for each image, just like the one you did in Component 1. We will divide up these descriptions between members of the group. This will be worth 4% of your final grade.

Due after Berlin

Final Paper:

A list of topics for a 1500-word history essay (ranging from early 20th-century electrification to the current Energiewende) will be distributed at the beginning of the course, with the intention that a portion of the research for the paper is conducted in Berlin. You may conceive of your own topic with approval from the instructor. The paper will be due by the end of the Spring Session (late June). You must rely on at least three scholarly sources and employ footnotes formatted in Chicago style, which is described in the History Student’s Handbook, available here: https://hist.ucalgary.ca/sites/hist.ucalgary.ca/files/history_students_handbook_2015.pdf.

Course Plagiarism Policy

I expect all students to be familiar with the plagiarism policy of this university, which is described in the section on academic misconduct in the University calendar. Please ask me if you have any questions or concerns. There is absolutely no excuse for not knowing what plagiarism is at the university level, and all cases of plagiarism will be referred to the Associate Dean of the Faculty of Arts.

Important Note on Using Internet Sources

The Internet is full of misleading and historically inaccurate information. You may cite web sites in your papers for this course but please be careful in establishing the provenience of these sites and treat them critically like any other primary source. You may use scholarly journal articles and books that are published in paper form but are available online. Cite the paper version without the URL.

D2L

The D2L site for this course will deliver some of the documents to be discussed in class. The instructor will also be posting additional information, handouts, and most of the announcements made in class. Students are encouraged to check D2L regularly.

Course Policies

Deadlines are firm. Two percentage points will be deducted from your paper grade for every day your paper is late. Make-up exams will be available only with a doctor's note or other certification. Assignments should be submitted electronically in a word document format.
Important Departmental, Faculty, and University Information

Writing:

This course will include written assignments. Faculty policy directs that all written assignments (including, although to a lesser extent, written exam responses) will be assessed at least partly on writing skills. Writing skills include not only surface correctness (grammar, punctuation, sentence structure, etc.) but also general clarity and organization. Research papers must be properly documented.

Writing Support:

Students are also encouraged to use Writing Support Services and other Student Success Centre Services, located on the 3rd floor of the Taylor Family Digital Library. Writing Support Services assist with a variety of assignments, from essays to lab reports. Students can book 30-minute one-on-one appointments online, sign up for 15-minute drop-in appointments, and register for a variety of writing workshops. For more information on this and other Student Success Centre services, please visit www.ucalgary.ca/ssc.

Copyright:

The University of Calgary has opted out of the Access Copyright Interim Tariff proposed by the Copyright Board. This means that instructors in all University of Calgary courses will strictly adhere to Copyright Act regulations and the educational exceptions permitted by the Act for both print and digital course material. What this simply means is that no copyrighted material may be placed on course D2L or web sites without the prior permission of the copyright holders. In some cases, this may mean that instructors will require you to purchase a print course pack from the University of Calgary bookstore or that you will have to consult books on reserve at the library. Plagiarism:

Plagiarism occurs when one submits or presents one’s work in a course, or ideas and/or passages in a written piece of work, as if it were one’s own work done expressly for that particular course, when, in fact, it is not. As noted in The History Student’s Handbook (http://hist.ucalgary.ca/sites/hist.ucalgary.ca/files/history_students_handbook_2015.pdf), plagiarism may take several forms:

- Failure to cite sources properly may be considered plagiarism. This could include quotations, and wording used from another source but not acknowledged.
- Borrowed, purchased, and/or ghostwritten papers are considered plagiarism, as is submitting one’s own work for more than one course without the permission of the instructor(s) involved.
- Extensive paraphrasing of one or a few sources is also considered plagiarism, even when notes are used, unless the essay is a critical analysis of those works.
- The use of notes does not justify the sustained presentation of another author’s language and ideas as one’s own.
Plagiarism is a serious academic offence and written work that appears to contain plagiarized passages will not be graded. All such work will be reported to the Faculty of Arts’ associate deans of students who will apply the penalties specified in the University of Calgary Calendar.

Universal Student Ratings of Instruction:

At the University of Calgary, feedback provided by students through the Universal Student Ratings of Instruction (USRI) survey provides valuable information to help with evaluating instruction, enhancing learning and teaching, and selecting courses (www.ucalgary.ca/usri). Your responses make a difference.

Please participate in USRI Surveys.

Student Accommodations:

Students seeking an accommodation based on disability or medical concerns should contact Student Accessibility Services; SAS will process the request and issue letters of accommodation to instructors. For additional information on support services and accommodations for students with disabilities, visit www.ucalgary.ca/access/

Students who require an accommodation in relation to their coursework based on a protected grounds other than disability should communicate this need in writing to their Instructor.

The full policy on Student Accommodations is available at http://www.ucalgary.ca/policies/files/policies/student-accommodation-policy.pdf
