ABOUT THIS COURSE
This course (part two) is a survey of the history of medicine and health care, particularly in Western societies (Europe and North America), from antiquity to the present. Its general organization focuses on major topics rather than being chronologically based. The aims are:

- to sketch in thematic blocks main subject lines pertinent to the evolution and status of modern medicine and health care in its cultural contexts;
- to examine the ways in which the body, health and disease were conceptualized in the past, and to situate the major shifts in medical knowledge and healing practice in the context of broader historical changes in Western societies;
- to examine the changing role of “the healer” and the “patient” over time and in differing cultural and social contexts;
- to track the development of some of the major institutional and societal frameworks of medicine and health care – embodied in areas of medical education, life science research, hospital design and health care provision;
- to analyze the ways in which human societies and their healers interacted in the face of medical challenges, both in differing times and parallel cultural evolutions.
The course is basically divided into two parts:

- The First Part (Jan. 2016 to Feb. 2016) begins with lectures that continue themes that have been explored in the preceding course (HTST493.38) and that focus on major developments in the more recent history of medicine and health care. Furthermore, valuable films are presented and discussed, which represent major developments in medicine and health care in the 19th and 20th century. Also, documentary films and movie clips are shown and analyzed that describe modern problems and challenges in health care and public health, which are then traced back to their historical origins. The majority of the classes are student-run, since students will present their investigations and research from projects they have undertaken during the term. These include for example themes related to particular disciplinary histories, the place of modern medicine and health care, the relationship of public health and clinical medicine, biographies of laboratory researchers and influential doctors in the history of medicine. During the month of January, the first student presentations will start in class and continue until the first week of March, when the course part of “Selected Topics in the History of Medicine” will end with a featured lecture on the “History of I.V. Injection” – paired with practical exercises for the medical and health care students. Three intensive small group sessions, based on literature presentations, will feature topics from the history of medical science and physiology, the epistemology of medicine and the increasing diversification of interdisciplinary research and care approaches in modern biomedicine.

- The Second Part (March, 2016) is a short but very intensive component of the course. In preparatory workshops, students will have the chance to again rehearse and discuss their preparation of talks, posters, and PowerPoint presentations etc. for the forthcoming nation-wide History of Medicine Days (HMD) conference in Calgary. All class members are requested to take part in this student-run conference, an intellectually intriguing, academically rich, and superb social event bringing together undergraduate medical and other students from interdisciplinary fields from all over Canada during March 11-12, 2016. All proposals for panel presentations (10-12 min.) and posters (3-5 min.) related to “Medicine and its Cultural Context” are eligible for selection into the program. This part ends with the submission of a research-based course paper for students from the History Department, the O’Brien Centre for the Health Sciences, as well as interested students from other programs (such as Science, Technology and Society, International Relations, Neuroscience, or Nursing) who take this course for credit.
COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Students are requested to:

   - Medicine, Life and Function: Experimental Strategies and Medical Modernity at the Intersection of Pathology and Physiology, by Frank W. Stahnisch (Bochum, Freiburg: Projektverlag, 2012)
   - The required readings are extremely important; students will be asked questions about them during the course and in the small-group sessions.

2. And are required to complete the following assignments:

   - 1st oral presentation (30 min. individual presentation) on the specific in-class research project: 15%

   - One final term paper. The 15-page essay (of about 4,000 words, excl. endnotes), which students are required to write on a topic related to the course, is due on the last Monday of the lecture period (April 11, 2016): 50%
   - plus active participation in the course and at the HMDs conference with adequate answers to questions: 20%

Suggestions for possible research topics and instructions for presentations can be obtained during interview office appointments with the course instructor. In addition, bibliographical material will be posted on the website of the History of Medicine and Health Care Program.

It is imperative that all students pre-read for small-group discussion in class. Text assignments are given to the students who attend the small-group reading sessions – beginning Feb. 11, 2016 (TRW, Nightingale Room).

Plagiarism:

Plagiarism occurs when one submits or presents one’s work in a course, or ideas and/or passages in a written piece of work, as if it were one’s own work done expressly for that particular course, when, in fact, it is not. As noted in The History Student’s Handbook, plagiarism may take several forms:

- Failure to cite sources properly may be considered plagiarism. This could include quotations, and wording used from another source but not acknowledged.
- Borrowed, purchased, and/or ghostwritten papers are considered plagiarism, as is submitting one's own work for more than one course without the permission of the instructor(s) involved.
- Extensive paraphrasing of one or a few sources is also considered plagiarism, even when notes are used, unless the essay is a critical analysis of those works.
- The use of notes does not justify the sustained presentation of another author’s language and ideas as one’s own.

Plagiarism is a serious academic offence and written work that appears to contain plagiarized passages will not be graded. All such work will be reported to the Faculty of Arts’ associate deans of students who will apply the penalties specified in the University of Calgary Calendar.

Universal Student Ratings of Instruction:

At the University of Calgary, feedback provided by students through the Universal Student Ratings of Instruction (USRI) survey provides valuable information to help with evaluating instruction, enhancing learning and teaching, and selecting courses (www.ucalgary.ca/usri). Your responses make a difference. Please participate in USRI Surveys.
