

Department of History

Fall 2013

HTST 541.4 – Topics in the History of Science: Science and Medicine from the German Empire to National Socialism, 1871–1945

Tuesdays, 15:30 – 18:30 pm
Social Sciences, Room 623 – 612 Campus Place NW

Few historical analyses and interpretations of Western science and medicine have been more politically and ethically charged than those concerning the nature and implications of the periods of German Imperialism and National Socialism. This course traces the successions and different cultural and political contexts by analyzing changing patterns of academic self-understanding and morality between 1871 and 1945.

For more information about this course, please visit the website of the Dept. of History (<http://hist.ucalgary.ca>). If you want to register for this course, please call 403-220-6401 or 403-210-9640 and give us your contact details for further communication.